On the occasion of the Centennial, the Fidel Castro Ruz Center, together with Cuban academic and cultural institutions, convenes the First International Colloquium Fidel: Legacy and Future, to be held at the Havana Convention Palace, Cuba.

The meeting proposes to analyze his actions in the political, social, internationalist, and human dimensions; to debate his influence on national liberation movements, the Global South, and the geopolitics of the 20th and 21st centuries; to reflect on the relevance of his ideas in the struggle against imperialism, inequalities, climate change, and for peace and the sovereignty of peoples; and to explore the reception, interpretation, and projection of his legacy in art, culture, education, and science.

This meeting will serve as a forum where historical memory dialogues with contemporary challenges and the aspirations of new generations.
